

REPORTING CYBERCRIME

From identity theft to phishing scams and cyberbullying, the spectrum of cybercrimes is vast and most of us will, unfortunately, encounter it in our digital life. In honor of Cybersecurity Awareness Month, we wanted to help you understand how to navigate these challenges and protect yourself.

General

You can report various forms of cybercrime to the following agencies: CISA: cisa.gov/report FBI: ic3.gov

Hacked Account

Report your hacked account to the respective platform's support team. Find direct links to popular platforms here: staysafeonline.org/online-safetyprivacy-basics/hacked-accounts/

Ransomware

Contact local law enforcement, including:

- CISA: cisa.gov/forms/report
- FBI: fbi.gov/contact-us/field-offices
- U.S. Secret Service: secretservice.gov/contact/field-offices

Identity Theft

Cyberbullying

Report cyberbullying to the platform where the bullying occurred or to your child's school.

Report to local law enforcement if there have been threats of violence, stalking or hate crimes at: stopbullying.gov/ cyberbullying/how-to-report

Phishing

Report suspicious emails to your email platform and then delete it. Or you can also report to:

- FTC: reportfraud.ftc.gov
- Anti-Phishing Working Group: reportphishing@apwg.org
- AARP Fraud Watch Network: 877.908.3360

Remember: Collect and Keep Evidence

You may be asked to provide evidence when you report certain types of cybercrime. This material can help law enforcement stop and prosecute hackers. All of the following documentation might be considered evidence, but you should keep anything you think could be related to the incident:

- Canceled checks
- Certified or other mail receipts
- Chatroom or newsgroup text
- Credit card receipts
- Envelopes (if you received items via FedEx, UPS or U.S. Mail)
- Log files, if available, with date, time and time zone
- Social media messages

- Money order receipts
- Pamphlets or brochures
- Phone bills
- Copies of emails, preferably electronic copies. If you print the email, include full email header information.
- Copies of web pages, preferably electronic
- Wire receipts
